MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 23.

Thanksgiving Talk.

In days of old only New England Governors issued Thanksgiving proclamations. Here is a little story as to how Missouri joined in it. It is an old-time Methodist parson who writes about it, and he addresses himself to the S. Louis Republic thus:

In the summer of 1859 I was the guest of an old friend, a good Methodist down in Benton county, and during the afternoon he asked me how it happened that the Governor of Missouri never issued a Thanksgiving proclamation.

I told him that I had never considered the matter, but would suggest it to Governor Stewart as soon as I returned to Jefferson City.

My friend then said that if the proclamation was issued, I must be his guest on Thanksgiving day, and that a yellow gobbler should at once be put in fattening against the front.

In the course of time I got back to the Capital, and called upon the Governor to suggest the advisability of issuing the proclamation. "What's in the religious line, suppose you write it?" I had no objection, and as once proceeded to try my pen in a State paper. When I got to the date I was puzzled. You see, I had in mind that yellow gobbler down in Benton county, and if I fixed the date at the usual time, I couldn't reach it. So I made a careful calculation as to my route, and decided that the first week in December would enable me to make connections. Without saying a word I entered Thursday, December 8, as the time for the first official Thanksgiving in Missouri. The Governor read the document over carefully, signed it, sent it to the Secretary of State, and in due course the day was proclaimed.
